After a natural disaster there can be a lot of mess. Sometimes roads, houses, and other buildings such as schools and shops can be damaged.

Trees and power lines can fall over. Power lines are very dangerous. It is very important that we do not touch power lines.

There might be lots of water on the ground and on the road. It is not safe to walk, play or drive in flood water.

Sometimes we will not have any power or water for a while. No power means no tv or computer. We can do other things like read or draw.

We should stay with our family so that everyone knows we are safe.

Sometimes we need to stay somewhere else while the mess is cleaned up. We can go back to our homes when it is safe.
